

Beverly Nimoh came to this country from Ghana. She lived with her grandmother. When her grandmother became old, she and her sisters took turns to assist her with her daily activities till she passed way. Fortunately for her, she had a chance to travel to America.

When she started working at Notre Dame, she worked on the dementia floor for 15 years. At this time she realized that her grandmother had Alzheimer's disease. She took care of many residents with similar symptoms as her grandmother. She decided to transfer to Hospice Unit so that she has opportunity to provide end of life care like what she provided to her grandmother. This experience has inspired her to further her education to be a nurse, so she can dedicate her job to assist patients with end of life. She is pleased to ask for this scholarship that can help her with school like a laptop and other school essentials.
